CALIFORNIA COWBOY WHISPERS SOLUTIONS TO OUT OF CONTROL HORSES THE NATURAL WAY

Internationally acclaimed horseman Dennis Reis rides into a city near you for the No Dust Tour. Reis, who hosts the popular television, show “Dennis Reis Universal Horsemanship” on RFD-TV, amazes the audience with his uncanny ability to communicate with horses.

This is no stage act, as Dennis demonstrates on local horses brought in by local residents, specifically troubled horses and young horses that have never been saddled or ridden. His technique, Universal Horsemanship 柔, focuses on communicating to the horse in their “language”, a blend of body language, position, and timing without the use of force.

The troubled horses that local residents bring to Reis have a variety of problems ranging from bucking, biting, spooking, disrespect, running off, unstoppable, and all kinds of other adversities. Over two days, and sometimes in 15 or 20 minutes, the horses are able to overcome these adversities and transform into relaxed, gentle, mounts sometimes not recognizable to the owners.

The No Dust Tour is educational and entertaining and is fun for the entire family. If you enjoy animals, especially horses, it will be a heartwarming two days of fun and action. These techniques apply to all disciplines including Western, Dressage, and other performance styles.

Reis established the Reis Ranch School of Universal Horsemanship 柔, Penngrove, CA in 1988. He conducts clinics at his ranch in California with students coming from all over the country to learn from the clinician. Reis’ love of horses moved into the political arena over the last three years and his driving determination culminated November 18, 2004 in the passing of Senate Resolution 452, recognizing December 13 as the National Day of the Horse. It was a unanimous vote.
